in from class to race charles mills maps the theoretical route that brought him to the innovative conceptual framework outlined in his academic bestseller the racial contract 1997 mills argues for a new critical theory that develops the insights of the black radical political tradition while challenging conventional interpretations of key marxist concepts and claims the author contends that marxism has been white insofar as it has failed to recognize the centrality of race and white supremacy to the making of the modern world by appealing to both mainstream liberal values and the structuralism traditionally associated with the left mills asserts that critical race theory can radicalize the mainstream enlightenment and develop a new kind of contractarianism that deals frontally with race and other forms of social oppression rather than evading them although modern racism was fully developed by their time marx and engels did not engage in a theoretical discussion of its essential features this analytical silence is investigated in the chapter marx and haiti notes on a blank space at the same time the chapters of this volume demonstrate that and why the principles of a historical materialist analysis of society present links for a critical theory of racism in the chapter dehumanization and social death fundamentals of racism this is shown concerning the various historical shapes of racisms caused by different forms of class relations the chapter racismflq birth of a concept connects the conceptual history of racism with the socio historical conflicts of differently affected social groups finally the chapter a historical materialist theory of racism introduction addresses basic elements of a marxist analysis of racism it elucidates the necessity of a theoretical conjunction of classist and racist discrimination as well as the historical differentiation of racisms

w e b du bois and the problems of the twenty first century utilizes du bois s thought and texts to develop an informed critical theory of contemporary society this book broadens the base of critical theory making it more multicultural transethnic transgender and non western european philosophy focused by placing it in dialogue with theory and phenomena that had been heretofore woefully neglected taking the preeminent black intellectual of the twentieth century as his primary point of departure reiland rabaka identifies and analyzes several key contributions that du bois and the black racial tradition offer to those interested in redeveloping and racially revising contemporary critical social theory with chapters on critical race theory postcolonial theory feminism and marxism this volume builds bridges from africana studies to disparate discursive communities accessibly demonstrating du bois s and the black radical tradition s contributions to and the potential impact on a wide range of new social scientific research and radical political struggles
